Dear NRC,

It is absolutely unacceptable to allow radioactive wastes and materials to enter the consumer marketplace or any of its public landfills, incinerators, etc... The potential risk to public health is too great. The consideration of financial loss and inconvenience to those responsible for the creation of these wastes and materials cannot compare to the critical importance to prevent possible mass suffering. There would be no way for innocent people to protect themselves from these dangers since they would be unable to trace their presence. There are too many problems already occurring as the result of toxic emissions and wastes. We cannot afford to allow such hazardous materials to be released beyond licensed facilities which are best equipped to deal with them.
