Subject: recycling "surface contaminated" radioactive waste

'00 JAN 18 AM 12:29

I am shocked and amazed that anyone considers it reasonable to recycle any radioactively contaminated waste into our country's metal supply. If it was a foreign country trying to put their radioactive metals into our cookingware, braces, etc., I would think it was some kind of sinister attack on the American people. Your distinction between volumetric and surface contamination does absolutely nothing to mitigate the outrageousness of your "recycling" scheme.

Your ridiculous program may escape public notice for a short while, but the truth is leaking out. It's not too late for you to call it off. One way or another the American people won't swallow it for long. So I ask you to consider the public backlash and what that backlash will require. Not just firings but criminal charges. If you have no conscience to compell you, just think about the personal legal problems you'll be facing.
