Regular status meetings have been conducted to keep the NRC informed regarding the development of the digital ASIC replacement modules for use in analog process control and protection applications. During those update meetings, the WOG and now the ASIC Subgroup noted it intended to provide advanced submittal of design and licensing information to the NRC as it became available in order to support the requested review and approval schedule for issuing an NRC Safety Evaluation (SE) in 3rd Quarter 2000 in support of the in-plant ASIC demonstration application. Chapters 1, 2, and 3 of the ASIC licensing topical report were provided via reference 1), Chapter 7 via reference 2), the seismic portion of Chapter 6 via reference 3), Chapter 5 via reference 4), the "Fault Conditions Test" portion of Chapter 6 via reference 5) and the "Environmental Test" portion of Chapter 6 via reference 6). This seventh submittal provides the "Electromagnetic Compatibility (EMC) Test Report" portion of Chapter 6 of the ASIC licensing topical for NRC review.

Enclosed are three (3) copies of the Chapter 6 "Electromagnetic Compatibility Test Report": WCAP-15403, Rev. 0 (Proprietary) entitled "Electromagnetic Compatibility Test Report Westinghouse ASIC-Based Replacement Module for 7300 Process Protection System," dated April, 2000.

Also attached are:
