To Whom it may concern:

Living in the great state of Utah, I am totally oppsed to to using the Goshut reservation in wester Utah as a temporay site for waste materials from other sources. The states in which the materials are produced, the benifits derived from and the tax dollars enjoyed, as in the case of power plants etc., is where this material should be stored temporarily if not permanantly.

To move this material across many state lines with no provisions made for the safety of the states, that it travels through, the cost of the clean up and who is liable if an accdent should happen. Is at best gross mismangement on the governments part. Obsolving PFS from the cost of clean up and liability does not make me feel safe about any of their proceedurs.

If the states in which the material is produced do not have, or have passed laws not allowing any more storage in their state, then they should STOP producing the material for someone else to deal with.

The govener of Utah, has said he will do all in his power to stop these deadly shipments from coming into our state. I stand ready to support him, by any means necessary, to ensure, Utah is not used as a garbage dump for the rest of the country.
