Dear Regulators,

I was astonished to learn that the NRC is even considering the release of low level radioactive waste into the community. As a federal regulatory agency, your first duty is to the American public and the protection of the public's health. A loophole the size of the one you are proposing is a gross neglect of your duty and if you decide to pass it the first dump truck loads of dirt should be delivered to each of your houses for your yards if it is so safe.

Please do not approve such a dangerous plan, the nuclear industry and the NRC knew what it was dealing with when it touted nuclear energy to be the country's energy savior, you and the nuclear industry has made your bed, now it time to lie in it and deal with the problems of nuclear waste through sound science not spreading it all over the place and claiming the problem has disappeared.

Sincerely,

Eric Gricus
