Subject: Regulation revision of treatment of radioactive soils

Radioactive soils must continue to be treated as a threat to humans, wildlife and the environment in general. No mixing of radioactive soils or any other strategy that would bring them into contact with the environment should be permitted. A monster has been created and it must be dealt with as a monster not suddenly change its name to puppy and declare it benign. Obviously every effort should be made to keep from creating more of the menace.

I urge you to maintain the highest safety standards with all radioactive materials.

Sincerely,
Marilyn Ortt
