

65 FR 44843

7-19-00

(41)

From: matt lawrence <matteolawrence@netscape.net>
To: <tjn@nrc.gov>
Date: Fri, Oct 20, 2000 2:54 PM
Subject: Think Of The Future!

I have just read a report on your plans to sell, or distribute nuclear contaminated soil and I have to say this is a most irresponsible idea. Although I am not to surprised that you are looking to cash in at the expense of humanity, the fact that you try and discredit previous studies is offensive. Perhaps you think people trust your studies as they have come from the U.S. and not some lesser country. I live in Colorado and another sinister plan has been announced here to use contaminated waste as fertilizer, I would hope that people in your situation would have more respect for this land, its people and for future generations. Do you not have families of your own? How dare you make a decision that could affect people for many generations. You will be dead and your profits made from your ridiculous plan will be gone, but your children will be left with yet another mess to clean up. There will come a time when we can no longer hope future generations can deal with such poisons, we are supposed to live in an enlightened age and for you to propose barbaric plans such as this is completely unacceptable. I'm sure your corporate sponsors think it is a great idea but I implore you to have some guts and stand up to big money and do what is right, just, and morally responsible, if these qualities even exist anymore in this country. Is the Bush family part of the NRC? This would make perfect sense, the ignorance and greed must end if we can ever hope for a sustainable existence. Do not be so easily fooled, people are more important than money, go home, look at your family, then make your decision upon what is truly important.

Get your own FREE, personal Netscape WebMail account today at <http://home.netscape.com/webmail>

Template
Adm 013

ERIDS.03
Add Tom Yuchalson
TJN

ADM03