Comments: I strongly disagree with you plans to release low level radioactive materials from regulatory standards.

I believe this abrogates your responsibility to isolate radioactive materials and prevent exposures. You shouldn't be thinking about deliberately exposing people by allowing radioactive materials into regular daily commerce

This is another reason why nuclear power ultimately is bad. I don't believe your agency and this process can be trusted to be objective or comprehensive or safe as you and this industry have polluted so much material with radioactivity that you would cut corners, even endanger people, in order to get out from underneath this burden you have created for yourselves.

In short, I strongly oppose any release of radioactive materials to commerce.
