

From: Margaret Doane, OCM
To: Elizabeth Doroshuk, EP
Date: Fri, Jan 12, 2001 6:10 PM
Subject: Mexico

7

I found a great Website for Energy in Mexico. It doesn't show the Secretary of Energy, or maybe it does, and I couldn't tell. It has a Ministry of Energy (maybe that's the secretary). Most of the Website is in Spanish. However, from what I can tell, the CFE does have responsibility for all generating plants, including La Guna Verde. So, there's not non-government utility as we would think of it. I believe it is strictly a government entity but its not clear to me. I did see a permitting process, but its unclear what kind of permits are being applied for. In France, EDF is government owned corporation, with a CEO etc. I am not sure if that is the same here with CFE. It doesn't look like it.

Here's the Website

<http://www.infocentro.com.mx/>

Margie

c/b