Mark,
the exit was short, and at the end when violation was mentioned and when using the new process was mentioned, Krich took issue. Steve Reynolds indicated they would talk more off line, but that our process was moving forward to evaluate whether to use the SDP on these findings. Krich mentioned that he did not think other plants that had an OSRE since the beginning of the new program were treated this way. He also said they were not sure a violation was in order because in each simulated event the plant was able to be scrambled. We indicated that it was being looked at in the new process mode "meaning that the SDP was being used-whether or not shutdown could be achieved.
