Ted and Scott,

I talked to Garrett about his concern. I think his real concern is that "aquatic pathway" may not be a very good descriptor and may not be standard terminology. That's what we (Mark Thaggard) had used, but I agreed with him that is is not great wording, since it leaves out that we are talking about ingestion of aquatic foodstuffs (fish, crustaceans, etc.). Garrett indicated he would think about it more.

Duane.

Please see me, together, on Monday. Garrett dropped by today, and he has some questions on the Cabot - Revere paper. I owe him an answer on Monday.

He wants a sentence on what an "exceptional value stream" is, to follow the sentence where it's used in the paper. E.g., "An exceptional value stream is "

He would like to know what the "aquatic pathway" is, under the residential gardener scenario ----- I speculated on it, but owe him a definitive answer on Monday.

Also, he plans to make some changes to the paper (at his level) that I can discuss with you.

Scott
