Dear Ms. Bailey,

Thank you. I know I was a pest through all of this, and I thank you for trying so hard to speed up this process. I'd really appreciate it if you could fax the letter to me at 865-574-6527, and then follow up with a hard copy. Again, thanks for all of your help.

You do not need an NRC license to use a portable gauge ONLY on DOE property. I will follow up with a letter. I apologize that this took so long.

Orysia,

I needed to confirm my understanding on this matter with my management, which I have now done.

DFS, a subcontractor for a DOE prime contractor, does not require an NRC license to use a portable moisture density gauge for activities that are conducted only at Oak Ridge, a DOE site. The basis for this position is that through its contracts with its prime contractor, DOE has the authority (and responsibility) to exercise safety oversight; therefore, it is not necessary to exert additional control by also requiring DFS to become an NRC licensee.

If you have any additional questions, please let me know.

Maria

Orysia,

My research indicates that they do not need a license HOWEVER, I am waiting to get my management's support on this. I will try to get back to you today.

Dear Ms. Bailey,

I spoke with Mr. Jay Henson last week; he said NRC was considering issuing us an exemption per 10 CFR 30.12, but that Management and the legal department were still discussing it. Do you know what our current status is?

Thank you,

Dear Ms. Bailey,

I hate to keep bothering you, but my boss continues to ask me every day about the status of out license.
Have you heard anything new?

Thanks,

Dear Ms. Bailey,

Thanks for helping us out. Just to clarify our situation for your management: we are a subcontractor to Bechtel-Jacobs, who is the prime contractor to the US Department of Energy. The gauge will be used on property that is owned by, and under the jurisdiction of, the DOE. As I understand the regulations, those two conditions make it necessary for us to obtain an NRC license.

Thanks again,

While going through the last step in concurrence management decided to check with HQ about whether or not you guys even need a license. I will check with the contact in HQ twice a day until this is resolved. I was out on inspection last week and thought that the license was out already. Give me your fax number and I will fax you a copy of the license as soon as it is released.

Dear Ms. Bailey,

We expected to receive our License by now but have not seen it yet. Could you please check on you end? Thanks; you've been a tremendous help.
