With Trip's changes, which have been incorporated, there is no legal objection to the final rule.

I do have one minor editorial contribution, which you may consider for what it's worth. I just noticed that in some parts of the rule we refer to "work papers" and in other parts to "workpapers." I don't know that it matters whether there is a space between the words, but as a matter of writing style, I prefer consistency. On the other hand, this is pretty benign stuff, so it doesn't really make a difference if it gets changed or not.
