

SYNOPSIS

This investigation was initiated on August 2, 2001, by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), Office of Investigations (OI), Region I, to determine if a technician at EMR Photoelectric (EMR) was discriminated against by licensee management, i.e., by delaying a promotion, as a result of raising radiation safety concerns at Radiation Safety Committee (RSC) meetings.

Based on the evidence developed during this investigation, OI did not substantiate that the technician was discriminated against as a result of raising radiation safety concerns at RSC meetings.
