Dwight,

AS you know, I'm trying not to be here tomorrow, either. I don't have a hot assignment for Theresa, at least until the FENOC test plan for the cavity cutout comes in. If she wants something materials-related to do on Friday that might be of some use down the road, she could copy and start getting familiar with the EPRI Boric Acid Handbook and the FENOC Root Cause Analysis so we can discuss alternate interpretations of the meager info that FENOC used to establish a plausible root cause.

I was talking to Theresa yesterday and she was wondering if there was any more work to do on the Davis Besse project. I was hoping the proposal would be in by tomorrow or even today but I don't see that happening. So, if you may not be here tomorrow will there be stuff for her to do, for her tomorrow? She said she is finished with the other project that she was working on earlier this week.
