Rich,

Ex 5

We had a drop in visit yesterday with the CEO of the PBMR co. from South Africa. They are currently conducting some test in South Africa. I do not know how they plan to credit this data for a possible future DC application, but they did say they are using it to validate their FLOWNET model for plant analyses. This testing will continue until the end of December. They intend to construct, operate and test a full scale prototype unit in South Africa prior to certification, so the current tests may not be important for US licensing.
