This investigation was initiated by the U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, Office of Investigations (OI), Region I, on May 2, 2002, to determine if two contractor security guards employed by Burns International Security Services, Utilities Nuclear Security Division, working at Dominion Nuclear Connecticut's (Dominion) Millstone Power Station were discriminated against for engaging in protected activities. Specifically, the first security guard believed he/she was forced to resign in January 2002; the second security guard believed that he/she was unjustly accused of damaging Dominion equipment and suspended without pay from February to November 2002, for raising safety concerns that involved security issues at Millstone and for complaining to Millstone's Employee Concerns Program.

Based on the evidence developed during this investigation, OI did not substantiate that either security guard was discriminated against as a result of having engaged in protected activities.
