ENCLOSURE

The Region I NRC Field Office of the Office of Investigations (OI), initiated a case (1-2000-007) to determine if a contractor electrician was subjected to ongoing harassment and discrimination due to his previous protected activities, and because of an earlier finding of discrimination on his behalf by the NRC. Once initiated, the investigation was expanded to determine if the contractor electrician was terminated on May 5, 2000, as part of the alleged continued discrimination.

Based on the evidence developed throughout the course of this investigation, including the review of information generated in the Department of Labor (DOL) appeals process, OI concluded that the contractor electrician's claim of continued discrimination was not substantiated.
