As you have already been informed, this software has not been tested by NESC implementation or execution of a sample problem or test case. Other than requiring that it meet NESC screening standards, no quality control has been imposed by NESC. No warranty, expressed or implied, is made by the contributor, the NESC, or the U.S. Department of Energy as to the accuracy or functioning of the software or other package material, and no responsibility is assumed by these parties in connection therewith.

This software is licensed to your installation, on an indefinite use basis, for your use only and is not to be copied or reproduced for distribution to others, or included in a service offered to users who are not a part of your organization without approval from NESC.

Should you convert this software to another machine, or make modifications or additions you feel might be of help to others, please forward the converted program, additions, or modifications to us for inclusion in the library. Should you encounter difficulties in placing this software in operation, we would like to hear of these so that they can be eliminated for future recipients of this material.
