My role in this is to only review information for sensitivity (post 9/11). Please coordinate with IRO and IIPB and send the information to Diablo Canyon.

According to the Agency's guidance on releasing information, performance indicators on EP should not be withheld. However, information should be withheld that provides the current status or configuration of any systems and equipment that could be used to determine facility vulnerabilities. Information on UE and Alerts in the last quarter of 2001 no longer provides "current status" and should be acceptable for release.

Has this type of information stopped being sent to licensees? I know it has stopped going to the general public, but I thought that INPO (or NEI) was providing them that service.
