I wasn't sure what all to take pictures of. But, I hope that the pictures I've sent provide some useful information.

Train designation is shown by the colored diamonds on the conduits and raceways (Green/Red). The north switchgear room is "Green" but has several red cables. The B55/B56 480 volt switchgear is swing (red or green).

Some of the red cables in the north switchgear room may not be redundant for safe shutdown purposes... I don't know.

As you can tell, things get pretty cramped in the overhead of both rooms. You really have a hard time finding smoke detectors in the EDG corridor because of all the cable trays in the way. Protecto wire is laced over many of the cable raceways.
