Fran referred your e-mail to me.

My understanding is that the web page that provides access to ADAMS will be restored next week - perhaps middle of the week. That will allow new users to access the system. As Brian indicates in his e-mail, existing users are not impacted - we can e-mail them the necessary files if they don't have them. Also, the PDR will perform searches of ADAMS for the public, so they don't need to use the software themselves in order to get access to documents in the system.

With regard to the continuing review of the Web site and ADAMS, the person to contact is Dave Matthews or Alan Madison for specifics. [
