Recent reviews by DRS into some of his items indicate no significant issues are present. The licensee now also seems eager to investigate and resolve these concerns on their own.

NOTES: (Include rationale for any referral to licensee, and identify any potentially generic allegations)

None needed.

Issue not to be referred to licensee

- A. Region 1 should refer as many allegations as possible to the licensee for action and response unless any of the following factors apply:

Information cannot be released in sufficient detail to the licensee without compromising the identity of the allegor or confidential source (unless the allegor has no objection to his or her name being released).

The licensee could compromise an investigation or inspection because of knowledge gained from the referral.

The allegation is made against the licensee's management or those parties who would normally receive and address the allegation.

The basis of the allegation is information received from a Federal agency that does not approve of the information being released in a referral.

Even if the above conditions exist, Region 1 shall refer the substance of the allegation to the licensee regardless of any factor if the allegation raises an overriding safety issue, using the guidance in Management Directive 8.8.

Factors to Consider Prior to Referral to a Licensee

In determining whether to refer eligible allegations to a licensee, The Region 1 Allegation Panel shall consider the following:

Could the release of information bring harm to the allegor or confidential source?

Has the allegor or confidential source voiced objections to the release of the allegation to the licensee?

What is the licensee's history of allegations against it and past record in dealing with allegations, including the likelihood that the licensee will effectively investigate, document, and resolve the allegation?

Has the allegor or confidential source already taken this concern to the licensee with unsatisfactory results? If the answer is "yes," the concern is within NRC's jurisdiction, and the allegor objects to the referral, the concerns should normally not be referred to the licensee.

Are resources to investigate available within the region?

Prior to referring an allegation to a licensee, all reasonable efforts should be made to inform alleged or confidential sources of the planned referral. This notification may be given orally and subsequently documented in an acknowledgment letter. If the alleged or confidential source objects to the referral, or does not respond within 30 calendar days, and the NRC has considered the factors described above, a referral can be made despite the alleged's or confidential source's objection or lack of response. In all such cases, an attempt will be made to contact the alleged by phone just prior to making the referral.

Also, referrals are not to be made if it could compromise the identity of the alleged, or if it could compromise an inspection or investigation. Note: Document the basis for referring allegations to a licensee in those cases where the criteria listed above indicate that it is questionable whether a referral is appropriate.
