It is atrocious that so long after 9/11 there is STILL no security around our nation's nuclear plants. Of course, they are also incredibly dangerous places to work, operate, and live near, and both the government (through the NRC) and the nuclear industry spokespeople (indistinguishable from the NRC) continue to sit on their hands and lie to the citizenry about safety. At least the shield proposal is SOMETHING to protect vast areas of the U.S. from meeting the same fate as a certain vast area in the Ukraine called Chernobyl. It offers some protection against the inevitable terrorist attack. Of course, true safety from a nuclear accident can only be achieved by shutting down all plants and fighting the building of more, but as a citizen at this point I'll take ANY safety measures over the current TOTAL LACK OF THEM. I wonder how you people will answer the populace in the event of a meltdown. How will you cover it up? How will you cover your sorry asses? How will you answer your infertile, cancer-ridden children, grandchildren, and on and on for a thousand and more generations? Just wondering.

I support security measures to protect our nation's horrible nuclear power plants against terrorist attacks.
