Subject: Microsaint model for the fire manual actions
Place: tbd

In a brief meeting that Jay and I had with Ron Laughery, Microsaint, two weeks ago, it became clear that Microsaint has empirical data that could be used to build a model for estimate time margins for fire manual actions. (apparently Microsaint did not participate in the first expert elicitation meeting because of miss communication). Indeed Ron offered to send to the NRC his best modeler, Beth Plott, to build a model with the help of at least one expert (Mike in this case, I hope Mike you will be available). Since it was not possible to have Beth coming here before 5/4, she is coming during the week of May 17. Anticipating that the 5/5 expert elicitation session will finish early on the 5th (most people indicate that would like to leave early) I was wondering if we could meet in the afternoon, at 2:00 pm, to talk about it. (We could have Alan on the phone if available). Please let me know of your availability.
