You have correctly assessed the environmental impact. The recently conducted public hearings, while an important part of the process, are just that: one source of public input. You correctly applied your approved process and scientific principles and judgment. The conclusion in support of the use of the site is appropriate. Additional steps in the future licensing of a unit or units will build on your work. Your job is complete and stands on its own merit! It serves as an important foundation for continued safe use of the property. The public is well served by your action and conclusions.
