You need to coordinate this with OI. I spoke to Rich Paul and Scott Langan on this issue, and they are under the impression that blackballing of each company represents a separate issue. They feel more information is needed from the CI regarding these other company's involvements in not hiring the CI and my understanding is that OI plans no further follow up on these issues until one of the divisions (DNMS or DRS) contacts the CI.

My opinion is that, while the CI may content that Exelon is behind the blackballing, that each company is responsible for its own actions/decisions regarding discrimination, and as such, as should be evaluated based on the circumstances surrounding the denial of employment. We have a simialr case from 1999 regarding Comed and severla of its contactors. We opened different allegation files for each company.

I will wait to hear from you or DRS. The S&L blackballing issue is currently assigne to DRS- please coordinate with DRs to determine who is handling any new blackballing issues, as well as getting with OI to determine if they are new. Thanks

You make a distinction without a difference. The "blackballing issue" is that Exelon is behind the CI's inability to find a job in the nuclear field, because of their power and influence. The CI now names additional companies (besides S&L) which did not offer a job. That is not a new allegation, only additional information in support of the original allegation, as my memo states. OI is fully capable of considering the question of how to address additional companies - I don't see the benefit of the technical staff contacting the CI for discrimination details. If an ARB is needed to ask OI to look at all the evidence - so be it.

Please re-review the information. The CI raises new blackballing issues in her/his hand written letter to OI. While OI is currently reviewing a blackballing issue (assigned to Jacobson), it relates to Sargent and Lundy and not the companies the CI refers to. OI and EICS reviewed the information and determined that, while these are new issues, we need more information from the CI regarding why s/he thinks that s/he was blackballed. Someone from DNMS or DRS probably needs to contact the CI to obtain more information. Thanks
