Marjorie:

To summarize the series of events mentioned in my phone message to you, in short, no one at the Bank could find the Standby Trust Agreement. PNC stated that they sold it to Mellon Bank, who in turn sold it to JPMorganChase, who claimed that they didn't have it and therefore wouldn't honor it. PNC called back late yesterday stating that they still had it and would hold onto it. The trustee information can be found on the attached document. Coincidentally, since PNC believed that someone else possessed the STA, they never charged us the $2500 annual fee but will now going forward.

It is amazing how such a simple request can cascade into a near crisis.

Sorry for the delay

Jon Young

Mr Young:

I hope that the difficulties you faced at your facility the other week have been resolved. I am again contacting you to inquire about the Schedule C and when this item will be sent. If there is a financial department at your company through which you would prefer me to go, please provide a contact and I will go that route. My management has requested that I receive this document by the end of this week. Again, the Schedule C is simply a sentence stating what are the trustee's fees.

Please fax this item to my attention at: 610-337-5269

Thank you for your continued assistance in this matter,

Sorry

With all good intentions to take care of this item this week, I am now onsite at a facility dealing with a source rack issue that has caused a shutdown of the facility from Monday night and projected through tomorrow noon. I'll give you a call during a break period today.

Jon

Mr. Young:

I have been trying to get in touch with you regarding the email and letter I recently sent requesting a Schedule C for the Standby Trust Agreement for your NRC Licenses. Please provide me with an expected date of completion for providing the Schedule C. You may fax it to my attention at 610-337-5269. The original email I sent to you is attached below with detail on the information we require. Please call or email me today so that I know you received this.

Thank you for your cooperation,
Marjorie McLaughlin
