Dear Chief of the NRC:

I am writing in response to the
Federal Register notice: page 1774 Federal Register,
Vol. 71, No 7, Wednesday, January 11, 2006, Notices.

My husband and I disagree strongly with the conclusions of the NRC staff that the proposed change (the Uprate) would not involve a significant reduction in a margin of safety. The draft Safety Evaluation released by the NRC has numerous examples of reduced safety margin. Each and every increased stress on a component or decreased time to respond represents a REDUCED safety margin. The vast number of reduced safety margins add up to a SIGNIFICANT REDUCTION IN SAFETY MARGINS.

It would be criminal and totally irresponsible to approve this Uprate without first having an INDEPENDENT SAFETY ASSESSMENT. Do not play loose with the lives of hundreds of thousands and with our precious earth.

Sincerely,
Alicia M. Jurcik
Benjamin Jurcik
