ANNUAL REPORT
GOVERNMENT IN THE SUNSHINE ACT

1. AGENCY NAME: U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission

2. CALENDAR YEAR: 2005

3. CHANGES IN POLICIES AND PROCEDURES DURING PAST YEAR

No changes occurred during CY 2005. The Commission last changed its rules in July 1999 when it issued a Federal Register notice stating that it would implement a rule published in 1985 to amend its regulations applying the Sunshine Act. The amendment changed the definition of "meeting" to incorporate verbatim the Supreme Court's definition from FCC v. ITT World Communications, 466 U.S. 364 (1984), to permit certain non-Sunshine Act discussions which had been foreclosed previously by the NRC's unduly restrictive interpretation of the Sunshine Act. The Commission held four "non-Sunshine Act discussions" during CY 2005.

4. MEETINGS: (January 1, 2005 through December 31, 2005)

A.	Total Number of Open	45 (57%)
B.	Total Number of Closed	34 (43%)
C.	Total Number of Partially Open/Closed	0 (0%)
Total Number of Meetings		79

The above meetings are counted by the number of separate agenda topics discussed as described in Appendix A. Appendix B contains a tabulation of open and closed meetings per month for CY 2005. Throughout this report, meeting numbers quoted are counts of individual items.

APPENDIX A

DEFINITION OF MEETING

NRC's Statutory Meeting Requirement

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is a five-member independent regulatory commission established by the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 (P.L. 93-408). It is responsible for ensuring the protection of the public health and safety through the licensing and regulation of the uses of nuclear materials. Section 201(a)(1) of the Energy Reorganization Act, 42 U.S.C. §5841(a)(1), provides that "[a]ction of the Commission shall be determined by a majority vote of the members present." In order to conduct meetings under the Government in the Sunshine Act, a quorum must be present.

Meetings Defined by Sunshine Act

The Commission's definition of "meeting" incorporates verbatim the Supreme Court's definition from FCC v. ITT World Communications, 466 U.S. 364 (1984) and is consistent with the approach endorsed by legal experts. The Commission defines "meeting" as:

the deliberations of at least a quorum of Commissioners where such deliberations determine or result in the joint conduct or disposition of official Commission business, that is, where discussions are sufficiently focused on discrete proposals or issues as to cause or to be likely to cause the individual participating members to form reasonably firm positions regarding matters pending or likely to arise before the agency. Deliberations required or permitted by §§9.105, 9.106, or 9.108(c) do not constitute "meetings" within this definition.

10 CFR §9.101(c), Government in the Sunshine Act Regulations. This definition would properly allow some discussions among three or more Commissioners in a non-public setting.

The Natural Resources Defense Council challenged this regulation in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit. The lawsuit contested the Commission's May 1999 decision to implement its 1985 rule changing the definition of "meeting." The court's ruling upheld the NRC's actions. Natural Resources Defense Council, et al. v. NRC, 216 F. 3d 1180 (D.C. Cir. 2000).

Under current Commission procedures, generally one agenda item is scheduled for each Commission meeting or briefing. Accordingly, for the purpose of tabulating meetings in this report, each session is counted as a separate meeting even if several sessions or briefings occur on the same day. Appendix B contains meeting statistics reported using the above definition and methods.
