Dear Ms. Vietti-Cook:

I am writing to OPPOSE your recently revised radiation protection standard for Yucca Mountain. This proposal is inadequate for protecting public health and does not comply with federal law. The standard ignores the scientific consensus on the health impacts of radiation, as well as the many unresolved problems surrounding radioactive waste. It will also burden future generations of Nevadans with significantly higher radiation exposure than ourselves, and set a terrible precedent; lowering the bar for radiation protection around the country.

The DC Circuit Court of Appeals decision in July 2004 found EPA's previous standard - a 15 millirem per year radiation exposure limit for 10,000 years - to be illegal. According to the ruling, the standard EPA sets for Yucca Mountain must be consistent with a National Academy of Science (NAS) study on the subject, which recommended that the standard extend through the time of highest risk to the public ("peak dose"). The Department of Energy estimates peak dose at several hundred thousand years.

EPA's recently revised standard, however, fails to comply with the court ruling and the intent of the NAS recommendations. Instead of extending the 15 mrem/yr limit through the time of peak risk, EPA has proposed a two part standard - 15 mrem/yr for 10,000 years, and then a 350mrem/yr standard thereafter (up to a million years).

Such a standard is not scientifically justified, and would be the least protective radiation standard in the world. No other U.S. or international radiation protection standard permits a dose of 350 millirems per year to individuals. In fact, EPA's proposed standard is not even consistent with the agency's own previous recommendations.

I ask you to withdraw this standard immediately, and propose a standard that is truly protective of public health and future generations.
