Subject: FYI: Pre-construction activities

On September 19, 2006, I discussed pre-construction activities for the American Centrifuge Plant with Pete Miner of USEC Inc. Pete had previously called me and asked whether certain pre-construction activities could be started, after which I discussed them with you.

During my conversation with Pete, I informed him that they can start on the following activities now:

1. procurement of long lead time items (such as steel)
2. off-site manufacture of various components (such as a prototype cold box)
3. solicit bids for construction
4. rent facilities for future use (such as manufacturing, administrative activities, warehouse)

Pete stated that they plan to discuss other pre-construction activities with us that they would like to start in the near future. These activities would likely be conducted on-site.
