INTERVIEW REPORT WITH [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] former Mechanical and Civil Superintendent for Day and Zimmerman Nuclear Power Systems (DZNPS) at the Kewaunee Nuclear Power Plant, from approximately April 2001 through December 2001, was interviewed on June 6, 2002, at the Point Beach Nuclear Power Station (Point Beach), by OI Special Agent Mary Kay Fahey. Following the conclusion of the court-reported interview, [REDACTED] related the following information in substance:

[REDACTED] stated that he recalled a conversation last summer [2001] with [REDACTED] who was a DZNPS welder who worked for [REDACTED] at Kewaunee. [REDACTED] stated that [REDACTED] was upset that he had not been selected as the foreman for the crew. [REDACTED] had previously stated during the court reported interview, that because of a shortage of money for the DZNPS contract, layoffs came several weeks earlier than planned. [REDACTED] stated that things "got ugly" for a few weeks after early layoffs were announced at Kewaunee. [REDACTED] told [REDACTED] that since he had not been selected as foreman, "people would go down," and he could make trouble for them. [REDACTED] stated that he felt these accusations might be the result of [REDACTED] trying to get even with him.

In addition, [REDACTED] also added that he had a conversation with [REDACTED] a DZNPS contract steam fitter, who was a friend of [REDACTED]. [REDACTED] told [REDACTED] that [REDACTED] felt that [REDACTED] was responsible for [REDACTED] badge being put on hold when [REDACTED] arrived to work at Point Beach. [REDACTED] did not know the reason that [REDACTED] badge was placed on hold at Point Beach.

This report was prepared on June 7, 2002, from the agent's notes.
