OFFICE OF SECRETARY
RULEMAKINGS AND ADJUDICATIONS STAFF

I feel as if having guards on the east shore at the gates is not worth the trouble. Having guards not on the island only draws more attention and will create more false alarms. If there are concrete barriers and guards on the island side of the bridges what is the point of having them off of route 441. If someone unauthorized would try to cross one of the bridges, that would rule out any uncertainty that it could be a false alarm. That would present to the guards that this is a serious situation and that discipline actions need to arise from the situation. Why draw more attention to the power plant by having guards outside the bridges when they can concentrate on being on the island, then in turn, there would be no mistakes as to guessing if someone is serious or not.
