Naeem,

Here's a little better info on various dimensions of the rad protection office area. Print out the pdf file from the attached e-mail. This is a blown up copy of their fire pre-plan with some dimensions drawn in. I've drawn lines across doors that our normally shut for our areas of interest.

Anti-C room: That's the room on the upper right (northwest) corner. It's basically a 25' x 16' room with a 9' x 9' chunk removed from it.

"HP office" (north room): That's the room just to the right (north) of the stairwell. It's roughly 8' x 13' with a 3' x 7' stairway opening.

"TLD issue room" (middle room): That's the room just above the stairway which, for all practical purposes, is connected to the rad protection office (to the left of the stair well). It's roughly 17' x 17' by itself. Note that this room has a 6' wide window which is about 3-1/2 high that vents to the hallway.

"Rad Protection Office" (north room): The room to the left of the stairwell about 27'4" x 17' plus area between it and the "TLD issue room." Note that there is a normally open 3' x 7' door on the west side of the area that vents to the hallway.

Have fun. We are!
