Tony,

Talked to NY, Clayton Bradt, about this subject. He said they were aware of this issue. (Someone from NRC had called and left a message this morning.) They have turned this over to the NY City PD. From the photo and the serial no. this appears to be a gauge that was stolen in Brooklyn in 2003. The State will keep us informed when they hear something from NY PD.

Best Regards,
Jim

Jim,

Here's one that needs to be forwarded to New York State to look into. Bob O'Connell may want to call this an allegation, but will leave that up to him. I'll send a request to Ebay today asking them to take down the auction until the State has a chance to make sure the seller has a license to possess the gauge, if it still contains RAM, and that any potential buyers are also licensed if RAM involved. If I fax Ebay the request they can send us back the name, city and state, e-mail address, and telephone number of the seller. For a street address Ebay requires a supoen. If the State needs that information they can handle it.

Tony
