Thanks. I'd like to personally alert Dan Horner of Platts to the news, as we kinda danced around the question last week after he spotted Joe G's draft FCIX slides that had us expecting another centrifuge app. (We said "Oops - it should have said 'SILEX'" ...)

AREVA has informed us that their notification to us about their plans to submit an application is no longer considered confidential. We plan to issue a meeting summary next week that will discuss their plans. This will be the first public document. Press interest may be expected.
