Narrative:

Last Updated: 12/05/2005

The Indiana State Department of Health was notified by a scrap yard that a load of waste triggered their radiation monitor alarms. A Health Physicist was dispatched to the scrap yard and discovered a 518 MBq (14 mCi) Cs-137 source (serial #4699931). The source was not leaking and caused no injury to personnel. It was determined that the source belonged to Nehi Royal Crown Bottling, a generally licensed company that is no longer in operation. This source is one of two similar sources owned by the company. The other source was not located. The U.S. EPA was notified, took over jurisdiction, and found a contractor to dispose of the located source. The contractor (ADCO Services) took possession of the source on 11/18/2005 and made arrangements for disposal.
