Heads up. The state of New Jersey commissioned an independent review of the Oyster Creek drywell corrosion situation. That review is scheduled to be provided to us in the next couple of days. Apparently the review didn't develop any negative findings, but it has a few items of interest. I'm sure we'll need to be able to answer a few questions on the review, so technical support will be sought. Of course, at some point the review will be fair game for the license renewal hearing.

Oh, by the way, the name of the organization that performed the review---Exponent.
