NRC ANNOUNCES EXPANDED PHOTO GALLERY ON ITS WEB SITE

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has expanded the photo gallery on its Web site, allowing users to easily find and download high-quality photographs and other images related to agency activities.

“In our efforts to strengthen public outreach, the agency has developed a photo gallery to help show who the NRC is and what it does” said Director of Public Affairs Eliot Brenner. “We expect these photos to help journalists, students, researchers and others with an interest in how the NRC protects people and the environment.”

The photo gallery can be searched by key words or through a menu of categories and subcategories. In addition, there are guidelines for searching and printing photos as well as conditions for using NRC images. New photos and images will be added, along with their descriptions, as they become available.

A link to the new gallery is available on the lower right side of the NRC’s homepage at www.nrc.gov. To go directly to the gallery, the URL is: <http://www.nrc.gov/reading-rm/photo-gallery/>.
