I oppose, strongly, the importation of nuclear waste into the United States for disposal.

I recognize the security implications of large amounts of nuclear waste in other countries. However, importing and disposing of it in our country is not the solution. Rather, hold those other countries accountable for their own security. This does not mean giving them large amounts of money ~~stolen~~ taxed from citizens of the various states. Nor does it mean passing laws and granting licenses which will enrich import companies at taxpayer expense, while leaving us with the problems engendered by nuclear wastelands caused by storage of such material.

I also do not want to see our highways carrying more traffic with such waste. As it is, the carriers are not marked ( a clear violation of safety rules ), and should an accident occur, I would expect not only the carrier(s), but the lawmakers who authorized such activities to be held personally accountable.

On the other hand, if you do clearly mark the vehicles, you will be inviting theft for .....

Even if contracts were properly written and administered, who would be most endangered by failure to meet contract standards. Not the contractor, I'm sure.

Bottom line – this is a bad idea. Do not authorize it!
