Comment : Please, please, please consider the immense potential risks that can come from storing such materials. Especially given that it's source is not even fully known. The fact that Utah is world-reknowned for it's unrivaled beauty, historical sites and natural wonders is reason enough to say no. I know that it is an issue of money and that EnergySolutions has contributed a lot to the state, but that shouldn't mean that it gives them the right to use us as a dumping ground. It not only endangers the land, but also our people. That's not even including all of the cities, towns and people that it has to pass through to get to Utah. As of now, we can proudly say we are not a state that is hiding an ugly and deadly secret amid our beautiful sites and culture. If this is approved, I'm sure tourists are going to love to find out that in the middle of our deserts is a NUCLEAR WASTE DUMP from Italy. Personally, I'd be staying far from it...
