Guy and Amy:

What do you recommend we do for lunch on Tues - Thurs.?

Also, I'm planning for a 2:30 kick off meeting on Monday unless you think otherwise. (by the time we get back to hotel, get to our cars and then drive over to Entergy and get settled - this is probably earliest.) At the risk of doing this scheduling business in piece meal fashion, I am attaching very rough outline of first two days. After that, things get complicated with possibilities of the transmission site visit by some folks or possible meetings with state agencies (even though we think those are going to be kept to a minimum). This just gets us started in the discussions. I am still plugging in the details from notes reviewers have given me that I still need some clarification. (ie - how hydrology group wants to do things). Speaking of which - I don't yet have the list of other folks on that team other than Lance and Chris who are the only hydrology people we have for environmental review.

Also - we are thinking that the game plan should be that we have our end of day discussions with just our folks and then do a morning briefing with you guys (Entergy) each day. Terri Miley, Darby's assistant on this project at PNNL says that was the arrangement at Bellefonte and it seemed to work well. Thoughts???

Hotel in Jackson is set. Discussions for arrangements for scoping meeting a bit more complex. We have everything set, but now worried about an unexpectedly large turnout. We can discuss more about this on Monday.
