programmatic control is now concentrated within a single position (Director of Nuclear Services) within (ONP). The creation of the Nuclear Security Services (an OCS security force) management organization in Chattanooga, in accordance with this agreement, establishes a more direct interface between the Division of Nuclear Services (DNS) and OCS to better provide security services as agreed to in the agreement. Under the agreement, Nuclear Security Services receives functional direction from OCS and receives technical and programmatic direction from the Nuclear Security Branch within DNS. It is the responsibility of the Manager, Nuclear Security Services, and the Chief, Nuclear Security Branch, to jointly ensure that site-level security support is being provided in a responsive and professional manner. Further, they are to ensure that NRC security requirements are being complied with at all times and that security officers are properly equipped and trained to do their jobs.

d. The last area covers support from organizations on an overhead basis which do not have people assigned to ONP. An example is procurement of materials by the Division of Purchasing. While the TVA Division of Purchasing does not report to the Manager of Nuclear Power, the ONP Materials Management and Procurement Support Branch, headed by the ONP Director, Nuclear Business Operations (who reports directly to the Manager, ONP), provides oversight of TVA's
