NRC INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 88-10: MATERIALS LICENSEES: LACK OF MANAGEMENT CONTROLS OVER LICENSED PROGRAMS

Addressees:

All NRC licensees authorized to use byproduct material.

Purpose:

This information notice is provided to remind byproduct material licensees of their responsibilities for ensuring that radiation safety activities are performed in accordance with license conditions and other regulatory requirements. It is expected that licensees will review this information for applicability to their programs, distribute the notice to responsible radiation safety staff, and consider actions, if appropriate, to prevent problems from occurring at their facilities. However, suggestions contained in this Information Notice do not constitute new NRC requirements, and no written response is required.

Description of Circumstances:

During 1987, there were 56 cases in which the NRC took escalated enforcement action against byproduct material licensees. Thirty-one of these cases involved a civil penalty, 14 involved Orders to suspend the licenses or to show cause why the license should not be revoked, and one involved a Demand for Information. These escalated enforcement actions were taken because various serious violations of NRC license requirements occurred. These violations included employees being overexposed to radiation and members of the public being unnecessarily exposed to radiation. In addition, the financial consequences to the affected licensees have been significant because of the loss of income from the payment of civil penalties, the suspension or revocation of the license, and the costs of implementing corrective actions on an expedited basis.

An analysis of the causes of escalated enforcement cases identify three common reasons for serious violations. These were:

- Failure of management to read and understand the conditions of the license. Some licensees were unfamiliar with their license and the requirement to maintain a radiation safety program. NRC inspectors have found that some licensee managers have never read their license and have little understanding of license conditions and commitments.
- Failure to train the workforce properly regarding the requirements of the license, including required radiation safety procedures.

880328
PDR I&E Notice 88-010

- Failure to monitor licensed operations, including failure to assure that licensee employees follow approved radiation safety procedures.

Discussion:

NRC holds licensee management, not the radiation safety staff or consultants, responsible for assuring the safe performance of licensed activities and adherence to NRC requirements.

Although there may be a radiation safety officer (RSO) assigned day-to-day radiation safety responsibilities, management retains responsibility to assure that radiation safety activities are performed in accordance with both internal procedures and NRC requirements. The amount of time necessary for management oversight will depend on the size and scope of the program. Management should support and monitor the RSO and safety staff to make sure they have adequate resources to do their jobs, are not devoting an inordinate amount of time to other duties, and adequately implement all radiation safety requirements.

The licensee's responsibility for control of its operations also extends to consultants and contractors. In certain circumstances, licensees may seek qualified assistance when the licensee staff does not possess the necessary experience, training, equipment, or personal dosimetry to perform particular activities. However, the responsibility for the safety of the operations and compliance with NRC requirements remains with the licensee.

NRC expects licensees' management to be aware of the conditions of their license to ensure that they understand their responsibilities under the license. This should include an examination of the details of their radiation safety program, to verify that the program complies with all requirements. As a result, licensees can avoid the serious consequences to their employees and the public and the significant financial costs that can result from failure to follow NRC requirements and from subsequent enforcement action by NRC.

No written response is required by this information notice. If you have any questions about this matter, please contact the appropriate NRC regional office or this office.
