IE INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 85-42 Rev. 1: LOOSE PHOSPHOR IN PANASONIC 800
SERIES BADGE THERMOLUMINESCENT
DOSIMETER (TLD) ELEMENTS

Addressees:

Certain materials and fuel cycle licensees who may use the subject TLDs.

Purpose:

This information notice was previously issued on May 29, 1985 and addressed to all holders of a nuclear power plant operating license or construction permit. This revision is being issued to inform certain materials and fuel cycle licensees that were inadvertently omitted when the notice was first issued to power plant licensees. No other revisions have been made to this information notice.

The notice was provided to alert NRC licensees to a problem noted in some Panasonic 800 series TLD badges that has caused spurious high readings in one of the badges' TLD elements. This information is intended to assist licensees in diagnosing any spurious readings with the Panasonic TLD system.

It is expected that recipients will review the information provided for applicability, if appropriate, to their dosimetry programs. However, suggestions contained in this information notice do not constitute NRC requirements; therefore, no specific action or written response is required.

Description of Circumstances:

The Panasonic 800 series TLD badge contains a card that holds four TLD elements. Each TLD element consists of a thin film of TL phosphor attached to a disk backing with a clear teflon bubble cover. During reading, the phosphor is heated by converging infrared light on the backing. The luminescence from the phosphor (which is proportional to the dose received) radiates through the teflon cover and is read with a photomultiplier tube.

Several Panasonic TLD users (including NRC's Region I) have identified badges where crystals of the phosphor have detached themselves from the backing of the element, resulting in high erratic readings in that element. When viewed through a stereoscopic microscope, phosphor crystals can be observed sticking to the teflon cover (presumably by electrostatic charge). In this position,
