IE INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 85-61, SUPPLEMENT 1: MISADMINISTRATIONS TO PATIENTS
UNDERGOING THYROID SCANS

Addressees:

All licensees authorized to use byproduct material for human applications.

Purpose:

This notice supplements IE Information Notice 85-61 (attached). It is expected that licensees will review this supplemental information for applicability to their activities and consider actions, if appropriate, to preclude further iodine-131 misadministrations. However, suggestions contained in this information notice do not constitute NRC requirements; therefore, no specific actions or written response is required.

Description of Circumstances:

Since the original notice was issued on July 22, 1985, the NRC has reviewed 14 additional iodine-131 misadministrations. The probable causes of these misadministrations are as follows:

- o The cause of 8 of the 14 misadministrations can be ascribed to the referring physician's order being misinterpreted or to a miscommunication to the technologists.
- o The cause of three other misadministrations can be ascribed to the technologists not being sufficiently familiar with the iodine-131 dosage requirements for thyroid scan procedures that involve scanning the chest area to ensure that the proper dosage was used.
- o The cause of the remaining three misadministrations can be ascribed to miscellaneous factors: a patient's identity was not verified before administering the iodine-131 dosage; the technologist selected the wrong iodine-131 capsule from the isotope laboratory and did not assay it to ensure proper dosage before administering it to the patient; and the nuclear medicine physician or radiologist was not aware that part of the patient's thyroid was intact before prescribing the amount of iodine-131 for administration to the patient for a whole-body iodine-131 scan.

PDR I & E Notice 85-061

Discussion:

Licensees that have experienced such misadministrations have found that the following corrective actions have been effective in preventing iodine-131 misadministrations.

- ° Provide periodic refresher training for nuclear medicine personnel involved in the performance of thyroid studies that emphasizes the effects on patients resulting from misadministrations involving iodine-131. Maintain records of such training.
- ° For licensees conducting infrequent or nonroutine nuclear medicine procedures involving the administration of iodine-131, ensure that the authorized user, and any physicians under the supervision of the authorized user, as well as the technologists involved are sufficiently familiar with these procedures so that they will be properly conducted.
- ° Establish a manual that contains the proper procedures for each of the nuclear medicine studies (i.e., thyroid uptake, thyroid uptake and scan, thyroid neck and chest, thyroid whole-body scan, etc.).
- ° Ensure that all thyroid studies referred to the nuclear medicine department involving the administration of iodine-131 will be in written form and the authorized user, or any physicians under the supervision of the authorized user, will prescribe an appropriate thyroid study for the particular patient conditions. For example, interview the patient, obtain additional information from the referring physician if needed, examine the patient, and sign the iodine-131 thyroid study prescription.
- ° Instruct all personnel involved in the performance of iodine-131 studies to request clarification from the prescribing physician if any element of a prescription or procedure is unclear, ambiguous, or apparently erroneous.
- ° Before each administration to a patient (adult or child), always calculate the required dosage for the prescribe procedure, and then ensure the correct dosage is prepared by calibrating that dose in the dose calibrator.
- ° Ensure compliance with 10 CFR 35.53, measurement of radiopharmaceutical dosages, §35.60, syringe shields and labels, and §35.61, vial shields and labels prior to administration of iodine-131, and maintain records of dosage disposition.

No specific written response is required by this information notice. If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact the Regional Administrator of the appropriate NRC regional office or this office.

IE INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 85-61: MISADMINISTRATIONS TO PATIENTS
UNDERGOING THYROID SCANS

Addressees:

Licensees authorized to use byproduct material for human applications.

Purpose:

This information notice is intended to alert recipients of potentially significant problems pertaining to human applications of byproduct material. In four recent cases, because of errors, patients received significant, unnecessary radiation exposures. It is expected that licensees will review the information in this notice for applicability to their facilities and consider actions, if appropriate, to preclude similar problems occurring at their facilities. However, suggestions contained in this information notice do not constitute NRC requirements; therefore, no specific action or written response is required.

Description of Circumstances:

In the first case, a referring physician telephoned the hospital to request a "radioactive iodine scan" for his patient. The written request was to be forwarded to the nuclear medicine department at a later date. When the patient arrived at the nuclear medicine department, the written request had not arrived. The nuclear medicine physician did not review the patient's history to evaluate the need for this scan or direct which isotope to use. The nuclear medicine technologist had interpreted the physician's telephone order as a total-body iodine-131 scan and administered a 5 millicurie dosage of iodine-131 to the patient. When the written request arrived at the hospital the next day, the request was for a "thyroid scan," which required a 5 millicurie dosage of technetium-99m. As a result of the misadministration, the patient received a dose of from 6500 to 9000 rads to the thyroid instead of the 0.7 rads that would have resulted from the use of technetium-99m.

In the second case, a 5 millicurie dosage of iodine-131 was administered to the wrong patient. The patient's identification was not verified and the iodine-131 was administered to a patient that was supposed to receive a 5 millicurie dosage of technetium-99m.

~~850-100445~~

Spp.

In the third case, because of incorrect patient scheduling, a 10 millicurie dosage of iodine-131 was administered to a patient instead of the intended 400 microcurie dosage of iodine-123. The nuclear medicine physician had not reviewed the patient's previous history and had not approved the nuclear medicine procedure and related dosage.

In the fourth case, a patient, who was scheduled for a thyroid uptake and scan, received a dose of 1000 microcuries of iodine-131 instead of the intended 100 microcuries of iodine-131. The hospital staff reported that this misadministration occurred because the involved personnel were unfamiliar with this clinical procedure, which was not frequently performed.

Discussion:

Checking the patient's identification and previous history before approving nuclear medicine procedures is very important, especially where a high dose to the patient will result from the procedure. It also is important for licensees to establish written procedures for dosage preparation and administration and to check the referring physician's written request before administering the dosage.

No specific action or written response is required by this information notice. If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact the Regional Administrator of the appropriate NRC regional office or this office.
