IE INFORMATION NOTICE NO. 84-01: EXCESS LUBRICANT IN ELECTRIC CABLE SHEATHS

Addressees:

All nuclear power reactor facilities holding an operating license (OL) or construction permit (CP).

Purpose:

This information notice is being issued to advise all addressees that under certain circumstances, excess lubricant may have become trapped inside cable sheaths during manufacture, and may drip out where cable sheaths have been cut for terminations.

Discussion:

By letter dated November 1, 1983, Illinois Power Company (IPC) notified the Administrator of NRC Region III of a situation where an oily fluid was observed seeping from cut ends of some power and control cables supplied by the Okonite Company for use at the Clinton Power Station.

Investigation disclosed that it is the practice of the Okonite Company to apply an extruded filler material over the conductors of multiconductor cable, to provide a uniform cylindrical surface on which to apply the outer cable jacket. Before the jacket is applied, the exterior surface of the filler material is treated with an oily lubricant to facilitate the jacket application.

Prior to early 1979, the filler material layer was so thin that sometimes the material tore in handling operations before the lubrication step. When this occurred, excess lubricant entered the cable bundle and remained there. In early 1979, Okonite reports, the situation was identified and corrected by slightly increasing the thickness of the filler layer, and changing the formulation of the filler material.

The Okonite Company states that presence of excess lubricant in cable in no way degrades the electrical characteristics or performance of the cable. IPC, while not disputing this position, is concerned that leakage of oil from the cable at terminations may create a fire hazard, and degrade other electrical equipment.

IPC has not used in Class IE service any cable exhibiting oil seepage characteristics. IPC further reports that Okonite has demonstrated to the satisfaction of IPC and its architect-engineer, Sargent and Lundy, that a Raychem heat-shrinkable "breakout" provides an acceptable seal to preclude oil seepage.

The situation described above, while apparently unique to one manufacturer, is of a type which could develop in any multiconductor cable manufacturing operation. Several years ago large single conductor power cables were identified where water ran out between the strands of the conductor. The water was determined to be condensate from steam used in the insulation vulcanizing process. This notice recognizes the value of licensees and vendors being alert to identify and evaluate anomalous behavior of components used in their plants. Although no specific action or written response is required it is suggested that addressees review the information for applicability to their facilities.

If you have any questions regarding this matter, please contact the Regional Administrator of the appropriate NRC Regional Office, or this office.
