I spoke with Ken Kline and he agrees that we have enough information to put the transfer of control order into concurrence. He asked if you could provide some additional details that his management may request.

1. The estimated dollar amounts for the DOE commitments. If breaking out a separate dollar figure for each DOE contract is a problem, you can lump items 1(a) and 1(b) together and give us a total balance from the decommissioning cost estimates that is guaranteed by DOE.
2. The actual balance of the escrow account as of a recent date. Some licensees are experiencing problems with escrow accounts that are invested in the market. The value of these accounts has been shrinking. We don't see a problem with your situation because you only need a small fraction of the total amount. However, confirmation of the current balance (such as a recent bank statement) and information on how it is invested would be useful.

We don't need a formal letter revising the table. An e-mail would be enough.
