Good Morning,

I would like to voice my strong opposition to Progress Energy's increase to cover, in advance, the cost of new nuclear power plants. I do not feel it is just for them to charge their existing customers in advance for new equipment. In the past bond issues have been used to fund this type of project and I believe it should continue that way. It's kind of like my paying GM now for a car that they will be built and deliver to me in 20 years. Think about it do you normally pay for something that will not be completed for about 20 years?

Thank You,
William Garvin
